DECISIVE BATTLE

Of the Campaign in Manchuria

RUSSIANS FALLING BACK

Vladivostock Fleet Again Leaves the Harbor

RUSSIANS BROKEN IN MANCHURIA

Tokio, June 30.—Kuropatkin has been defeated all along the line. The defences of Port Arthur have been attacked. New Chwang is practically in the hands of the Japanese and the power of the Russians in Manchuria is so badly shattered that it cannot interfere with any plans the Japanese war council may see fit to carry out for the balance of the campaign. This is the gist of news which has been received here today. In detail it is reported that Tashie Tao has been taken. The Russians have been driven from Si Ma Cheng, and the Japanese are within common range of Hai Cheng. In the north, Kuroki's advanced parties are feeling the Russian fortifications at Liao Yang, and he has a strong force about Ping Tai See, ready to move either on Liao Yang or Mukden as the exigencies of the campaign demand. The Russian losses in the fighting which has been going on to the east of Tashie Kiao and Hai Cheng, have been very heavy, the Japanese artillery having been particularly effective.

Kuropatkin is said to be at Hai Cheng in person, and it is believed he will be compelled to give battle there against the combined Japanese armies. News from Port Arthur, is extremely encouraging. The line of forts just outside the main fortifications have been taken, after hard fighting and the Japanese guns, which are much more effective than those of the Russians now command the Port, and the opinion of military men, will soon make it untenable.

News of the capture of the fortress and the destruction of the Russian vessels there is momentarily expected.

VLADIVOSTOCK SQUADRON OUT AGAIN

Tokio, June 30.—Dispatches from Genan, Corea, report that the Russian Vladivostock squadron appeared there today and attacked that place. The firing was done by destroyers.

MAY CUT COMMUNICATIONS.

Liao Yang, June 29.—The Japanese column which forced the passage of Moten Pass is advancing on Liao Yang by the eastern road. A Russian force, commanded by General Count Keller, is holding a fortified position commanding the road this side of the pass. The object of the Japanese is to cut the Russian communications northward of Liao Yang, while General Kuropatkin is operating in the vicinity of Hai Cheng with practically the whole of the Russian forces.

CHINESE GET ACTIVE.

Rome, June 30.—The Minister of Marine has received a telegram from Tien Tain today stating that General Ma, the Chinese commander, has asked for authority to cross the River Liao and occupy New Chwang.

BOMBARDED GENSAN.

Seoul, June 30.—It is announced from official sources that the Russian Vladivostock squadron, consisting of three cruisers and ten torpedo boats and destroyers, appeared off Gensan today and threw 14 shells into the Japanese settlements.

RUSSIAN VESSELS WRECKED.

Paris, June 30.—The St. Petersburg correspondent of the Polit Parlemen telegraphs that official confirmation of a naval engagement at Port Arthur on June 23rd has been received. The battleship Peresviet was run ashore and the cruiser Diana was hardly able to reach the harbor and is damaged beyond repair.

Cromer in Egypt

Mak and Empire: Marvelous as they appear now, the results of Lord Cromer's administration in Egypt are not yet fully unfolded. Their growth will probably continue a long time before their maturity is reached and the economic revolution they are working is completed. His great ideas, planted in that arid soil, have not only produced plentifully of the very means of subsistence, but they have inspired the downtrodden people with hope and enterprise. His reforms have wrought wonderful changes in the actual productive capacity of the country, but directly and materially they are of less value than they are sentimentally. They have energized the despairing population, and who can measure the future consequences of that miracle?

By Egypt's industrial regeneration her countries must benefit as well. Indeed, if Lord Cromer's latest undertaking turns out as successful as all friends of progress must hope, incalculable good will result to the world at large. This is no less than the liberation of the Mohammedan conception of that article of the Koran which prohibits usury. To convert the followers of the Prophet from this economic heresy would seem impossible without leading them into what they regard as religious heresy. But Lord Cromer is careful to avoid the appearance of any argumentative attack on their faith. To induce them to lend their money with mutual advantage to themselves and the borrowers, the great financier found it necessary to take the role of the higher critic, to insist on sound principles of biblical interpretation, and stand out for the application of the historical method. The very high esteem in which he is held among the Mohammedan people of the country he has done so much for made it possible for him to broach the subject without offence to the Islamic authorities. With those dignitaries he has had several interviews at Cairo within the last six months, and he appears to have convinced them that in their teaching and practice regarding money matters they paid too much respect to the letter of the sacred law.

Usury, in the sense commonly accepted among Christians, is certainly a bad thing, and the money lender who refrains from imposing excessive rates when he is in a position to exhort them is recommended. It would seem, therefore, that a Christian statesman should have nothing but praise for the Mohammedan doctrine and practice in regard to usury. But an usury the Mohammedans understand interest charges of any kind. They consider themselves forbidden to receive any payment whatsoever for the loan of their money. On the face of it that might seem praiseworthy because of its unselfishness and generosity. But unselfishness and generosity are not necessary concomitants. If the Mohammedan is not permitted by religion and conscience to get a return on his money then he will not lend it. He will put it in what he deems a safe place and keep it there.

The place of safety selected is seldom a bank. If banks were made the depositories of the Mohammedan cash it would make little difference to the business of the world whether the owners got interest or not, and, for their part, bankers could very well afford to humor the scruples of the anti-interest depositors. But banks do not invite the confidence of Mohammedans. These institutions could not exist if they did not charge interest on their loanable funds, and, of course, the persons who supplied them with the funds would be parties to that sin. So banks do not come freely into existence in the Mohammedan centres. Hence, the faithful have to store their money themselves, and each rich man has his secret hoarding place. In Turkey, Persia, India, and Egypt the gold stored away amounts possibly to billions of dollars. From the world's known stock of that precious metal large quantities disappear mysteriously every year, and it is supposed to be swallowed up in the holes where all the surplus money of the Mohammedans goes.

If Lord Cromer induces the Mohammedans to accept his rendering of the command against usury, it will be by an influence that would almost suffice to make him a second prophet among them. The effect of twelve hundred years' teaching and custom on the stationary nature and fanatic temper of the Mohammedan people cannot be changed in a day, and if Lord Cromer persuades them to his own view, they must have been making good progress towards it for some time before he moved in the matter. It is possible that a freer construction of the usury prohibition has been favored by eminent expounders of the Koran. Incredible as it seemed a short time ago that Japan should suddenly break out of the mould in which she had lain for ages, she nevertheless did it, and showed a plasticity that to-day makes her the wonder of the world. China, rigid as her ancient structure is, promises to fling herself with similar agility into a modern formation. Why should not the Mohammedans read another meaning into a single word of the Koran? The conversion of the adherents of Islam to the capitalistic theory would have immense consequences. It would release a vast reserve fund that is now doing no good. The hoards would be turned to productive account, and would transform other Mohammedan countries as Lord Cromer is transforming Egypt. Thus would a slight modification of one religious interdiction bring about mighty financial, industrial, commercial, and social changes over a large portion of the earth.

Thunderous Philippic

The London Times prints a ten column dissertation on the Russo-Japanese war, written by Count Tolstol, in his most violent style. The trend of this remarkable document is, first, against all war, but it is principally a thunderous philippic against the Russian government, and the Russian orthodox church, and generally against the existing order of things.

Tolstol says that the reservists throughout Russia are "dissatisfied, gloomy and exasperated, and the old appeal for faith, king and fatherland has lost its spell over the Russian masses."

The ten columns breathe gloomy forebodings and preach revolution. Tolstol holds the Emperor up to contempt as an unfortunate and entangled young man, recognized as the leader of 120,000,000 people, continually deceived and compelled to contradict himself.

Tolstol, however, does not stop with Russia, for Japan is given a share of his stinging comments for having forcibly resisted what he terms "the unprovoked aggression of Russia."

WHITE WHALE LAKE

Bulletin Correspondence.

White Whale Lake will soon have roads second to none of the new districts in the country. At the last meeting of the councilors of Road District 27 B at Lac Ste. Anne, contracts were let for repairing all roads within this district and the work is to be completed by August 15th. The board of councilors have decided to ask the other boards of councilors between Stony Plain and here to act in concert in petitioning the government to extend the base line road from Edmonton to the lake.

The wells which have been sunk in this section reveal the fact that we are blessed with the best water to be found in the country. At a depth not to exceed thirty feet, pure, sparkling, refreshing water is found, having not a trace of the swampy taste. To go together with our plentiful supply of wood and coal and the earliest and most productive soil, ought certainly to attract new settlers to this vicinity.

The Messrs. White have finished their sawmill work for the season and will be plain farmers for the summer. Rev. C. F. Hopkins has been again assigned to duty as a missionary in charge of the restoration work. We do not know as yet whether or not he will accept the appointment, as it depends on the ability of his mother to look after his household. The people here sincerely hope he will be able to remain for another year and they deeply sympathize with him in his severe trials of the past winter.

Mr. H. Woodard and Mr. J. Elliston are among those who will attend the Edmonton fair.

Mr. H. Day made a trip to Edmonton last week where he expected to find Mrs. Day's father, Mr. Kaufman, who came up from Wisconsin to see his mother.

White Whale Lake, June 28th.

FIRST DAY OF THE FAIR

Largest First Day Crowd on Record Partial List of Prize Winners At the Course

The first day of Edmonton's big fair was an unqualified success, far surpassing in attendance any previous opening day in the history of the association.

FINE WEATHER AND LARGE CROWDS

The elements were certainly propitious and a finer day for an exhibition could not have been anywhere. A warm, sunny day with a slight breeze and a cloudless sky was the sample of weather supplied. Towards evening a huge bank of black clouds rolled up from the west, but worked around to the north and no rain fell here. In the morning the exhibitors were busy arranging exhibits and few people were on the grounds. In the afternoon, however, they turned out in crowds. All kinds of carriages were busy depositing their loads on the grounds, while a stream of pedestrians darkened the sidewalk from the station to the gates. It is estimated that at one time in the afternoon there were in the neighborhood of 5,200 people on the grounds. This number is about 500 in excess of the attendance on the opening day last year and is the more significant when it is considered that the first day's attendance is practically limited to the people from town, those from outside points as a rule delaying their visit until the later days.

THE PRIZE WINNERS.

During the forenoon the judges were busy in the exhibition hall, the cattle sheds, the horse stalls and the pens for the sheep, swine, etc. By noon the bulk of the work of judging had been completed. A list of the winners in the classes judged yesterday is given below. A few classes remain to be completed to-day, the winners in which will appear in tomorrow's Bulletin.

ATHLETIC EVENTS.

Following were the results of the athletic events which were pulled off at the track during the forenoon yesterday.

100 yards, amateur—1st, C. H. Stuart; 2nd, D. McKay.

75 yards, girls, 12 years old and under—1st, Jessie Stone; 2nd, Lillie West.

FORT SASKATCHEWAN WINS THE FIRST GAME.

Fort Saskatchewan won the first game in the baseball tournament from Edmonton last night by a score of 9 to 7. The line-up of the teams was as follows:

Fort Saskatchewan: Atkinson, Reeves, Simon, Sutter, Samis, Secord, S. Simon, Schultz, White.

Edmonton: Till, Magill, Gilmore, Inglis, Deaton, Rowsome, Maloney, Archibald, Allen.

The game was the fastest ball played on the Edmonton diamond this season. Up to the fifth innings it was anybody's game, but the Fort began to draw away at the end of the sixth, the score was 6 to 3 in their favor. During the seventh they secured three more, but were shut out in the eighth. Edmonton secured one in the seventh and three in the ninth, leaving the final 9 to 7 with an innings to spare for the Fort.

The scores by innings were:

Fort Saskatchewan—0 1 1 1 3 3—9
Edmonton—0 0 2 1 1 0 3—7.

MOTION OF CENSURE

DEFEATED IN THE HOUSE

Haggart and Borden Attempt to Revive the Dundonald Issue, but in Vain

Bulletin Special Dispatch.
Ottawa, June 30th.—Haggart moved a resolution of censure on the Government for withholding the documents on the plea that they were confidential. R. L. Borden supported, keeping up the debate until six o'clock.
At 8 o'clock the resolution was defeated in the House without a counted vote, neither Borden nor Haggart being present.

The motion was made in the hope of reviving the Dundonald affair, but it was a dead failure.

JACK THE RIPPER

HE APPEARS IN BERLIN

Mutilated Bodies Taken From the River Spey in the Heart of the German Capital

Berlin, June 30.—The horrors of the Whitechapel murders some years ago have been revived in Berlin by another "Jack the Ripper," whose gra-sious crimes are an impenetrable mystery.

Some time ago the headless trunk of a young girl was found in the River Spey. The limbs had been severed and the way the knife had been used indicated some knowledge of anatomy. There was nothing to reveal the woman's identity, and, judging from the appearance of the remains, the doctors conjectured that the victim was about 20 years of age.
A few days afterwards arms and legs partially burned were discovered on a mud heap, but the head is still missing.

A few days after another body mutilated in exactly the same fashion and wrapped in some clothing was taken out of the Spey in the heart of Berlin.

going to war Japan did not contemplate the acquisition of territory, and did not consider color or creed, despite Russia's attempts to create the impression that there is danger of yellow Asiatic combinations. Japan indulges in no personal ambitions. The whole nation actively supports the government and sympathizes with it.
War was not sought, but now it has come the country will fight until the last man is exterminated. Japan must win this supreme struggle for national existence. Determination thrills the humblest of my countrymen. I believe that Japan's demands will be extremely moderate, as the world may infer from the negotiations which preceded the war, when Japan merely required Russia to fulfil her own promises. The progress of the war may influence the demands that Japan will make, but I do not anticipate that there will be any serious deviation from her original demands. Strong reformation has been already initiated in Corea, without, however, destroying the essential features of the present government. The time is ripe for discussing the troublesome element in Corea, and elevating that country to a position among progressive nations.
Corea is so intimately related to Japan that misfortune would affect both alike.

"I beg to emphasize the striking identity of purpose in the United States and Japan is demanding the open door that they might supply the markets. Manchuria's development intimately affects both America and Japan, while the Philippines and Formosa form links in the chain of national interests."

CANADIAN ORDER OF FORESTERS

To the Editor.

The organizing agent of the above order is now in Edmonton staying at the Alberta Hotel and he hereby sends greeting to all Canadian Foresters in the town and district and a hearty invitation for all such to call and see him for consultation with a view of organizing a Canadian Order of For-

Our Neighbor's Policy

Canadians have a neighborly interest in the policy of the United States. That policy, if the Republican party are again successful, will be along the following lines, as outlined by the Republican National Convention:

The first clause endorses the faith of the party in the principle of protection, with the following rider: "We have extended widely our foreign markets, and we believe in the adoption of all practicable methods for their further extension, including commercial reciprocity wherever reciprocal arrangements can be effected consistent with the principles of protection, and without injury to American agriculture, American labor, or any American industry."

"We believe it to be the duty of the Republican party to uphold the gold standard and the integrity and value of our national currency. The maintenance of the gold standard established by the Republican party cannot safely be committed to the Democratic party, which resisted its adoption, and has never given any proof since that time of belief in it or fidelity to it."

"While every other industry has prospered under the fostering aid of Republican legislation, American shipping engaged in foreign trade, in competition with the low cost of construction, low wages and heavy subsidies of foreign governments, has not for many years received from the government of the United States adequate encouragement of any kind. We therefore favor legislation which will encourage and build up the American merchant marine, and we cordially approve the legislation of the last Congress which created the merchant marine commission to investigate and report upon this subject."

"A navy powerful enough to defend the United States against any attack, to uphold the Monroe doctrine and watch over our commerce, is essential to the safety and welfare of the American people. To maintain such a navy is the fixed policy of the Republican party."

"We cordially approve the attitude of President Roosevelt and Congress in regard to the exclusion of Chinese labor, and promise a continuance of the Republican policy in that direction."

"We favor the peaceful settlement of international differences by arbitration."

"Combinations of capital and of labor are the results of the economic movement of the age, but neither must be permitted to infringe upon the rights and interests of the people. Such combinations, when lawfully formed for lawful purposes are alike entitled to the protection of the laws, but both are subject to the laws, and neither can be permitted to break them."

"Our foreign policy under President Roosevelt's administration has not only been able, vigorous and dignified, but in the highest degree successful. The complicated questions which arose in Venezuela were settled in such a way by President Roosevelt that the Monroe doctrine was signally vindicated and the cause of peace and arbitration greatly advanced."

"His prompt and vigorous action in Panama, which we commend in the highest terms, not only secured to us the canal route, but avoided foreign complications, which might have been of a very serious character."

"He secured the tribunal by which the vexed and perilous question of the Alaskan boundary was finally settled."

"Under his guidance we find ourselves at peace with the world and never were we more respected or our wishes more regarded by foreign nations."

"Pre-eminently successful in regard to our foreign relations, he has been equally fortunate in dealing with domestic questions. The country has known that the public credit and the national currency were absolutely safe in the hands of his administration."

The platform concluded by commending President Roosevelt's administration without reservation to the considerate judgment of the American people.

PARLIAMENT

Ottawa Correspondence:

The Auditor General Resigns

It is announced that J. L. McDougall, Auditor General, has tendered his resignation. Mr. McDougall is the official whose duty it is to check over all accounts against the government, and without whose approval no account can be paid. He is an independent officer, not being subject to removal except on a two thirds vote of both Houses of parliament. He is placed in this position so that in his audit he shall be beyond any possible political influence. The office was created by the Liberal administration which held power from '74 to '78, and its purpose was to prevent the diversion from the purpose intended of money voted by parliament, as well as to ensure that no money would be paid unless and until value had been given for it. It had been a matter of complaint against previous administrations that such abuses occurred, and when the Hon. Alexander MacKenzie became premier, he took the means of the appointment of the Auditor General to check those abuses.

A Long Term of Office

Mr. McDougall held office during the remaining part of the term of the Liberal government which appointed him, through the whole of the succeeding eighteen years of Conservative rule and up to the present time, during seven years of Liberal administration under Premier Laurier. He has, therefore, been in office nearly thirty years, bearing the heavy responsibility of not only checking over the accounts of the government, but also on occasion checking the government itself during three administrations. It is not wonderful that after thirty years of such service, and at an age approaching seventy, Mr. McDougall should wish to retire from active work.

Another Martyr

But the occasion of his retirement is being seized upon by the Conservative press as a cause of offence against the government, with quite as much eagerness and vehemence as the dismissal of Lord Dunsford. In such form as suits each particular paper, the assertion is made that Mr. McDougall retires because of the excessive efforts which he had to make in order to protect the treasury against the raids of the government and its friends. The country is called upon to stand aghast at the condition which has brought about the retirement from office of such a necessary and faithful public servant; and is asked to contemplate the fearful condition into which its finances may be expected to drop without the watchful guardianship of the present Auditor General. He is spoken of as the guardian of the treasury, the watchman of the people; and it might even be supposed that he is the only honest man in the service of the people of Canada, if not the only one amongst all its people. His retirement is given the importance of a national calamity, and in thunder tones the people are asked, what are you going to do about it when the elections come? It is well that the people of the west should know exactly how the auditor General, his position and his work are looked upon by the Conservative press and party.

The Auditor General From Another Point of View

Many people who have had occasion to do work for or furnish supplies to the government, will have a very vivid remembrance, and a very different idea of the merits of the Auditor General. While the purpose of the appointment of the Auditor General, and the clothing of him with the powers which he had, was to provent dishonesty in the handling of the public funds, (and it is only fair to the Auditor General to say that he has striven to discharge that duty thoroughly and conscientiously) it is also a fact that inasmuch as man is a little lower than the angels, when one of them is placed in an absolutely autocratic position his point of view differs from that of the person or persons over whom his authority is exercised. Everyone will admit that honesty is the leading idea of the Auditor General in the performance of his duty, but everyone who has come in contact with him in a business way will agree that during the thirty years of his dictatorship his ideas of what constitutes honesty have developed lop-sidedly. His idea of his duty in guarding the treasury has grown until he has practically lost sight of his duty to honestly pay the debts incurred on behalf of the public service. He is in his own estimation exactly what his ardent friends of today declare him to be, the watch-dog of the treasury. That is to say, he looks upon everyone who has a claim for payment against the government, as being by reason of that claim dishonest and an intended swindler.

The Results of Autocracy Gave to Seed

With this view he assumes the right to cut down accounts to any degree that may suit his whim or that of his subordinates; and the government is placed in the position of on the one hand being accused of dishonesty by those to whom it owes money, or on the other hand, if it attempts to override the decision of the Auditor General, being accused by the opposition of wishing to rob the country for the advantage of its friends.

Honesty is Needed all around

It is probably necessary that there should be an autocratic officer holding the position now held by the Auditor General, but matters have come to such a stage that it is absolutely necessary that this officer should have a full appreciation of the fact that the government owes obligations as well as has rights, and that because it is in his power to delay or refuse payment of an account, it does not follow that it is right or just or according to the intent of parliament or of the country that he should do so. There are today thousands of dollars owing by the government to the people in the Northwest for various public services, payment of which has been prevented by the Auditor General acting in the autocratic authority which he possesses. In his anxiety to prevent robbery of the government by the people, he has systematically perpetrated robbery of the people by the government. Such a position could not continue or responsible government would cease. That there should be differences of opinion between the government, which desires to pay the money which it owes, and the Auditor General who sets his own views up as the sole and final right, and so refuses payment, could only be expected. It is a hard case if in this country of Canada another Auditor General cannot be found who will be equally honest with Mr. McDougall in protecting the treasury and who will be a great deal more honest in seeing to the prompt payment of public money for public services.

ANOTHER BUCQUET

Under the head "Canada Boom Bustled" the Creston Times has the following:

"The reports from the Canadian North West from time to time only add strength to the conviction that the possibilities there as an agricultural country have been largely exaggerated. Cold, climatic conditions, coupled with short seasons and frequency of devastating storms, are not the most potent auxiliaries to successful agriculture. Those who sold out farms in Minnesota and the Dakotas and moved to Canada with bright hopes of amassing a fortune in short order, have long since become sick of the change and long for the fertile lands of the valley and prairies of these states."

As to where the reports referred to originated the Times does not condescend to say and considering the remarkably favorable prospects now obtaining throughout the Canadian West it is a reasonable conjecture that they were born in the spirit which lies back of the item. From time to time articles of this nature appear in the journals of the Northern States where the rapid decrease in population caused by the exodus to Canada is naturally a matter of concern and that not from a favorable standpoint. As to the damage likely to be done by them it need not cause anxiety. The reports which are being sent and which will be sent back by the thousands of satisfied and prosperous American settlers who have in late years taken up

The G. T. P. Terminus

A Saskatoon despatch says:

The preliminary investigation into the murder case of Monday last, was here to-day, the man's body and the accused both being brought here. The latter is a nice bright boy only a little over 10 years old, and does not realize his position. His mother and sister were the only witnesses examined and they showed plainly that the unfortunate man had a terrible temper. He had been separated from his wife on two occasions and though hearing with them at the time of his death, had been occupying a tent. This was set up on his daughter's land and against her wishes, and after a quarrel with the mother on Monday, the daughter said he would have to go. He refused and started in to smash things up, and broke the windows of the house, etc. His two daughters proceeded to pull up his tent; he knocked both of them down and then took an axe from the youngest with which she was knocking up the tent pegs, and went for the eldest girl. He was standing over her with the axe raised, when the boy, Harold I. Stewart, came out of the house with a loaded single barrel shot gun. As he stood on the steps with the gun pointed, the mother saw him and at the same time saw the father with the axe raised over her daughter. With a cry of "Oh, my God, he is going to kill Hina," she snatched at the gun which was discharged, and her husband was shot dead, the charge entering his neck and shoulders.

The family came from the States a year ago and lived in the town for some time and then took up their land. Two months ago, previous to their going up to Eagle Creek, the deceased and his wife separated again, and the latter said in her evidence that she had refused ever to live with him again. On the day of the murder he spoke of getting another wife and wanted her to come to the States for July 4th and he would show her to the family.

The evidence showed that he had ill-treated them more than once, using a club and his feet freely. The wife and daughter slept out on the prairie one night when they expected him because they were so afraid of him. The boy was committed for trial, an application being made for bail. He was removed to Prince Albert, his solicitor, T. D. Smith, going with him to complete arrangements for his bail.
